SHERMAN'S LETTER TO JOHNSTON—THE SURRENDER.—RALEIGH, N. C., April 21st. GENERAL:—I send you a letter for General Wilson, which if sent by telegraph and courier will check his career. He may mistrust telegraph; therefore better send the original, for he cannot mistake my handwriting, with which he is familiar. He seems to have his blood up, and will be hard to h[illegible]. If he can buy corn, fodder and rations [illegible] about Fort Valley, it will obviate the necessity [illegible] up to Rome or Dalton.

It is reported to me from Cairo that Mobile is in our possession, but it is not minute or official.

Gen. Baker sent in to me, wanting to surrender his command, on the theory that the whole Confederate army was surrendered. I explained to him or his staff officer the exact truth, and left him to act as he thought proper. He seems to have disbanded his men, deposited a few arms about 20 miles from here, and himself awaits your action. I will not hold him, his men or arms subject to any condition other than the final one we may agree on.

I shall look for Major Hitchcock back from Washington on Wednesday, and shall promptly notify you of the result. By the action of Gen. Weitzel in relation to the Virginia Legislature, I feel certain we will have no trouble on the score of recognizing existing State governments. It may be the lawyers will want us to define more minutely what is meant by the guarantee of rights of person and property. It may be construed into a compact for us to undo the past as to the rights of slaves and "leases of plantations" on the Mississippi, of "vacant and abandoned" plantations. I wish you would talk to the best men you have on these points, and, if possible, let us in our final convention make these points so clear as to leave no room for angry controversy.

I believe that if the South would simply and publicly declare, what we all feel, that slavery is dead, that you would inaugurate an era of peace and prosperity that would soon efface the ravages of the past four years of war. Negroes would remain in the South, and afford abundance of cheap labor, which otherwise will be driven away, and it will save the country the senseless discussions which have kept us in hot water for fifty years.

Although, strictly speaking, this is no subject of a military convention, I am honestly convicted that our simple declaration of a result will be accepted as good law everywhere. Of course I have not a single word from Washington on this or any other point of our agreement, but I know the effect of such a step by us will be universally accepted.

I am with great respect your obedient servant.
W. T. SHERMAN, Major-General, U. S. A.

CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS.—There is said to be a prescription in use in England for the cure of drunkenness, by which thousands are said to have been assisted in recovering themselves. The receipt came into notoriety through the efforts of John Vine Hall, commander of the Great Eastern steamship. He had fallen into such habitual drunkenness, that his most earnest efforts to reclaim himself were unavailing. At length he sought the advice of an eminent physician, who gave him a prescription, which he followed faithfully for seven months, and at the end of that time, had lost all desire for liquor, although he had been for many years led captive by a most [illegible] appetite. The recipe, which he afterwards published, and by which so many other drunkards have been assisted to reform, is as follows: Sulphate of iron, five grains; magnesia, ten grains; [illegible] of nutmeg, one drachm; twice a day. This preparation acts as a tonic and stimulant, and so partially supplies the place of the accustomed liquor, and prevents that absolute physical and moral prostration which follows a sudden breaking off from stimulating drinks.

SAYINGS OF JOSH BILLINGS.—It is highly important that when a man wakes up his wind to bekum a raskal, he should ex[illegible] If [illegible] and see if he aint better constructed for a phool.

FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE [illegible] 18[illegible]

The Surrendered Rebels and the Civil Courts

A new question seems to be made a question which the rebel officers and soldiers [illegible] the President [illegible] pardon, should be protected from further molestation by the terms of their surrender. Some insist that the civil authorities now have no right to try for treason any who laid down their arms on the conditions agreed upon between Grant and Lee. We think it is an erroneous view of the matter to suppose that the officers of the Government meant to put it out of the power of the proper authorities to deal as the law provides with those who should be found guilty. Setting aside the mere speculation of any who have no more information on this subject than all may possess, we think the true intention of the Government at the time of the surrender of the rebel armies is to be ascertained from an inspection of the terms of [illegible] and from a view of the course which the National authorities have taken since that time in reference to those who became unwilling prisoners. This is the only correct method of proceeding with the investigation, since it would be an uncharitable insinuation against the Government to suppose that it would willfully and perfidiously violate its pledges of protection and pardon even in the case of rebels themselves.

The terms tendered to Lee by General Grant permit the officers and soldiers of the rebel army to return to their homes, not to be molested as long as they observe their paroles and obey the laws of the United States which are in force wherever they may be. That this agreement was intended to subsist only until the termination of hostilities seems quite obvious. The mere fact that the men were paroled is an indication that they were considered in no other light than as ordinary prisoners of war. A parole with a promise of no further molestation so long as such parole is observed, is not to be regarded as a pardon for civil offenses. After the war was over the offenders could be said to be on parole no longer. The conditions of their surrender could, after that time, no longer protect them. The agreement which Grant made with Lee is to be regarded in no other light than as a military measure. From this view, we can see no reason why it should be claimed that the arrangement was intended to last longer than the termination of the war, or that under the stipulations of the pact made by military officers, the civil authorities should be concluded from bringing to trial and punishment any who are known to have perversely violated the laws.

Again, it is not competent for any military officer to so set aside the laws which define and provide for the punishment of treason as to exempt from all prosecution any whom the Courts might otherwise find guilty. The Constitution gives a clear definition of treason, and the Courts are not to be precluded from passing upon trial any who may be accused. In its own sphere the Judiciary is an independent branch of the Government. The fundamental law defines its duties with precision, and it is subject to no other limitations than those which the laws prescribe.

In order to ascertain what meaning attaches to the terms of the capitulation, there can be no other criterion so good as to observe the line of conduct pursued by the Government since the surrender took place. It is very evident that the authorities do not interpret the arrangement entered into with the rebels flagrante bello, to be an estoppel against civil prosecution now that the war is ended. If such had been the understanding at the time Lee surrendered, his subsequent arrest would have been a gross violation of good faith on the part of the Government. Many others who were included in the capitulation have recently been apprehended. The Government does not seek to justify itself for these acts, a fact which conclusively shows that its faith with the rebels has not been broken, and hence it deems a justification unnecessary. Without maliciously impugning the motives of those who stand at the head of the Government, we cannot suppose they ever construed the terms on which the rebels surrendered in any other light than as an arrangement whereby the paroled prisoners might ever thereafter be free from being interfered with by the military authorities. But that it was then understood that the rebels should not be amenable to the civil laws for the crime of treason, the course the Government is taking in bringing them to trial wholly disproves.

Even if the General Government cannot now try these rebels for treason, the authorities of their States may do so. But from the present action of the Government it is clear that the National authorities do not consider the agreement entered into by our military officers any bar to a prosecution of the rebels for treason in the civil Courts.

JOHN C. BRECKINRIDGE. Though the Government of the United States, after having quelled all armed opposition, may now well afford to exercise a judicious clemency towards most of those who are incapable of making further resistance, yet it cannot permit John C. Breckinridge to escape. His crimes are too great, his treason is too flagrant. Of all old offenders against the laws none are as guilty as he. Not a single loyal person in all the land can have the least disposition to say a word for his exculpation. No faith has been pledged to him for his protection. He was not included in the surrender of any rebel army. He had been both a military and civil officer of the rebellion, and if any are to be excepted from all forgiveness, he is whose name should head the list. [illegible] condemned. [illegible] infinitely less favor than any of his fellow traitors [illegible] that he has not even the bad merit of having been an avowed and defiant rebel from the commencement of the struggle. He is simply a [illegible] journal of the standing of the Union should [illegible] reports circulation [illegible] One dollar is all that is charged [illegible] river 75 cents is the price [illegible] will compare favorably with any Cali[illegible] was broken completely down by fatigue [illegible] to Idaho from the Columbia [illegible] and nights on the Blue Mountains [illegible] blanket to shelter him [illegible] charitable packer had given him [illegible] the "bell mare," and generously [illegible] blanket at night [illegible] this year met with the [illegible] the Blue Mountains. His opening paragraph [illegible] by others of similar tone, [illegible] "blows" against the climate. A [illegible] for the Sacramento Union.

LIKE "OUR GREENBACK."—They have an ordinance [illegible] rising city of Umatilla, which [illegible] use of pistols—but it is rather more effective [illegible] prohibited—and it is a finable offense [illegible] of fire arms "inside the corporate limits" [illegible] which extend a long distance up and [illegible] and for some considerable distance [illegible] portion of the town. A man is in danger [illegible] for accidentally shooting himself. [illegible] arrived at Umatilla, and to prepare [illegible] agents whom he might possibly encounter [illegible] the mines, he went down to the river and discharged the contents of the six barrels, firing toward the [illegible] side, when he was almost instantly arrested [illegible] before "His Honor," where, upon examination, he was fined $10 and costs, amounting in all to $22 50. He paid the penalty in legal tender notes [illegible] a receipt for the amount, left. [illegible] that a Celestial was in about the same [illegible] for a similar offense—firing fire-crackers [illegible] and was fined, which fine he paid in gold coin [illegible] the Portlander on the street soon after [illegible] "Chinaman good as white man—paid in gold. [illegible] like 'um greenback,'" which was adding [illegible] our fellow citizen thinks, and gives [illegible] to the end that others may fire off old charges [illegible] to be in their revolvers, before they boat [illegible] in reaching Umatilla.

BELL RINGERS.—The Bishell Brothers troupe of [illegible] and Swiss Bell Ringers gave one of their splendid [illegible] at the Theatre in this city last evening. [illegible] little Clara, one of the most youthful and [illegible] performers of the age, is still with them [illegible] from the audience by her pleasing and [illegible] The programme was very select and [illegible] entertaining, so much so that it would [illegible] to particularize, nevertheless there [illegible] which it should be interesting to mention "The [illegible] Polka," with solo for the flute [illegible] "Moore," was an exceedingly difficult piece but [illegible] executed. The [illegible] the celebrated echo theme and variations, "Sounds from Home," arranged for the Violin, [illegible] Oboe, by Messrs. Bush, Fiedler and Mason, [illegible] of more than a passing remark, they [illegible] by the audience. Uninterrupted [illegible] certainly reward the efforts of this popular [illegible] who have thoroughly established themselves in [illegible] of the people, wherever they have traveled. [illegible] entertainment will be given to-night.

[illegible] MUSICAL INSTRUMENT.—Prof. Sinsheimer has [illegible] place of business on Front street, a very ancient [illegible] instrument, which was brought to this country at [illegible] day, to enliven the lonely hours of the Hudson [illegible] Company's agents, and has managed by its abiding [illegible] proprietorship to survive the growth of time, [illegible] some needed repairs are added will still be [illegible] for which music for the races that have turned the [illegible] efficiency of its early [illegible] The construction of the instrument is a [illegible] being in style similar to an organ, with the difference that there are six cylinders, with set pieces, each [illegible] performing from six to ten different tunes [illegible] of the regular bass by which any desired piece of [illegible] can be produced by a [illegible] This [illegible] is now the property of a resident of Washington [illegible] and if not prized as an instrument should at [illegible] held in high estimation for its worth as a memento [illegible] times.

[illegible] ABOVE COLVILLE.—From private letters re[illegible] in this city, dated Colville, June 3d, we are [illegible] that the new discoveries at the head of the [illegible] were held in great estimation by people [illegible] party is said to be making $10 per day [illegible] in the new camp. At that date several [illegible] and [illegible] would leave that [illegible] and upon his return [illegible] given our informants. It seems that [illegible] are willing to take [illegible] on the strength of what [illegible] shows that they have [illegible] new diggings will be known as [illegible] near the spot where Lewis and Clark [illegible] the Columbia in 1806.

A COMPARISON OF NOTES.—The Sacramento Union of [illegible] June says that General F. Nowry [illegible] forwarding freight and passengers to Idaho," [illegible] at that city. He was thirteen days from Ruby [illegible] Owyhee, to Red Bluff. The Union thinks the route [illegible] great advantages over the [illegible] * * * Comparing notes on the [illegible] we [illegible] shown a letter [illegible] Mr. H. [illegible] City, written on the 5th of June, which states [illegible] and conversed with a gentleman there [illegible] on the route to Idaho via Red Bluff, which [illegible] day of May last. They had not yet arrived [illegible] heard from so far off that he would not [illegible] them before the middle of July or the first of [illegible]

[illegible]—These troublesome insects are committing havoc among gardens in the city. We learn [illegible] they are very numerous throughout the whole [illegible] places it is impossible to protect gardens [illegible] ravages. Until this year, they have never [illegible] to exist in such great numbers. Their [illegible] be detected by an inspection of the plants which [illegible] By digging in the earth at the root of the [illegible] often be found and killed.

[illegible] DR. ELWERT.—The firemen of the city, and [illegible] friends of the late Dr. C. Elwert, turned out in [illegible] yesterday to pay the last [illegible] The ceremonies were conducted at the Presbyterian church by Rev. THE WORD "SOZODONT," which is fast becoming a household word, is derived from the Greek, and composed of two words, Sozo and Odontes. "Sozo," translated, means to preserve, and "Odontes," teeth—"Sozodont," a preserver of the teeth. And it is true to its name. For beautifying and preserving the teeth, hardening and invigorating the gums and correcting all impurities of the breath, it is without a peer in the world.

Sold by Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers everywhere, 75 cents per bottle.

Robert Fulton.

BY [illegible]

When John Fitch began to build his first steamboat at Philadelphia, there was living in that city a young man, twenty years of age, named Robert Fulton. We can still read, in the Philadelphia Directory for 1785, the following line:

"Robert Fulton, Miniature Painter, corner of Second and Walnut streets."

He was more than a miniature painter, though it was in that favorite branch of art that he chiefly gained his livelihood. He painted portraits, landscapes, and allegorical pieces in the [illegible] that time. Such was his success in his profession that, at the age of twenty-one, when he had been but four years employed in it, he was able to present his widowed mother with a farm of eighty-four acres, and to afford the expense of a voyage to Europe with a view to improvement in his art, as well as the re-establishment of his health, which his excessive application had impaired. The farm, it is true, cost but four hundred dollars, since it was in the far west of Pennsylvania, but this does not detract from the merits of the action. It was a worthy beginning of an honorable career.

Robert Fulton, born near Lancaster, Pennsylvania, in 1765, was the son of an Irish tailor, who came to the country in early life, prospered in business, and retired to a large and productive farm in Lancaster county, the garden of Pennsylvania. The father of Benjamin West, who lived a few miles off, and the father of Robert Fulton, were old friends, and the boy consequently heard much of the fame and success of the painter who had left home a poor untutored youth to become the favorite artist of George III.

At school Robert Fulton was a dull and troublesome boy. Books were disgusting to him. He had the impudence to tell his teacher, one day, that his head was so full of original notions that there was no vacant room in it for the contents of dusty books. But, out of school, he exhibited intelligence and talent. He drew well almost from his infancy, and, as he grew older, he showed a remarkable aptitude for mechanics. The shops of Lancaster were his favorite places of resort. Being late at school one day, which was by no means an uncommon occurrence, his master asked him the cause. He said he had been at a shop near by pounding lead, and he showed the result of his labors in a very neatly shaped lead-pencil, which, he said, was the best pencil he had ever had. At thirteen, he assisted in celebrating the Fourth of July by discharging sky-rockets made by himself on a plan of his own. During the revolution, Congress had a gunshop at Lancaster which was haunted by the boy, who assisted the workmen by drawing plans of gun-stocks and by suggesting methods of repairing broken muskets. There, too, he was frequently busy in attempting to construct an air gun.

It was in the summer of 1779, when he was fourteen years of age, that he conceived an idea which, twenty-five years later, had important consequences. There was a heavy old flatboat on the river in the neighborhood which was much used by the boys in their fishing excursions. It was propelled by means of poles. Being extremely fatigued, on one occasion, by poling this cumbrous craft against the stream, it occurred to the boy that perhaps, paddle-wheels turned by a crank could be applied to the boat. Soon after, the experiment was tried with so much success, that he and his companions never afterwards used the boat except with paddles. This boyish invention (which, though not new, was original with him) is supposed to have prepossessed his mind in favor of paddle-wheels for steamboats.

At seventeen, his father having died, this precocious youth established himself in Philadelphia as a miniature painter, and returned on his twenty-first birth-day to his early home with the means in his pocket of rendering his mother independent for life. That pious deed performed, he sailed for England, to seek instruction in his art at the hands of his father's friend, Benjamin West. When he left America, poor John Fitch had not yet completed his first steamboat; but his plans had been published, his company formed, and the boat begun. We may be also [illegible] certain that a young man like Fulton, with one of the best mechanical heads in the world, full of curiosity with regard to the mechanical arts from his childhood, must have well known what John Fitch was doing.

The great painter received the son of his father's friend with open arms, accepted him as a pupil, and lodged him at his house in London for several years. Fulton, however, never became a great artist. He was an excellent draughtsman, a good colorist, and a diligent workman; but he had not the artist's imagination or temperament. His mind was mechanical; he loved to contrive, to invent, to construct; and we find him, accordingly, withdrawing from art, and busying himself, more and more, with mechanics; until, at length, he adopted the profession of civil engineer. His last effort as an artist was the painting of a panorama, exhibited at Paris in 1797, which he afterwards sold in order to raise money to pursue his experiments with steam.

Robert Fulton was never capable of claiming to be the inventor of the steamboat. It is, nevertheless, to his knowledge of mechanics and to his resolution and perseverance, that this world is indebted for the final triumph of that invention.

Recent investigations enable us to show the chain of events which led him to embark in the enterprise. His attention was first called to the subject in Philadelphia by the operations of John Fitch in 1785 and 1786. Next, fifteen years after, Fulton visited a steamboat in Scotland, which, though unsuccessful, was really propelled by the power of steam for short distances at the rate of six miles an hour. To please the stranger, who showed an extreme curiosity to witness its operation, this boat was set in motion, and Fulton made drawings of the machinery. A year or two after, he was in France again, where he made the acquaintance of the gentleman who had in his possession the papers left in France by John Fitch, which contained full details of his plans for applying steam to the propulsion of vessels. We have the testimony of this gentleman that the papers and drawings of John Fitch remained in the possession of Robert Fulton for "several months." Aided thus by the knowledge and experience of previous inventors, enjoying the immense advantage of the improved steam-engine of James Watt, being himself an excellent mechanic and a very superior draughtsman, having the appearance and manners of a gentleman, and an extensive acquaintance with the leading men of his time, he began the execution of his task with advantages possessed by no previous experimenter in steamboats.

But even these would not have availed if he had not had the good fortune to find a wealthy co-operator. Chancellor Livingston of New York was then the American minister at the court of Napoleon. Besides being a gentleman of large estate, he was a man of public spirit, with a strong natural interest in practical improvements.—Chancellor Livingston, to his immortal honor, became first the friend, then the patron, and, finally, the partner of Robert Fulton.

In 1803 the first steamboat of Livingston and Fulton was built in France upon the Seine.—When she was almost ready for the experimental trip, a misfortune befel her which would have dampened the ardor of a man less determined than Fulton. Rising one morning after a sleepless night, a messenger from the boat, with horror and despair written upon his countenance, burst into his presence, exclaiming

"Oh, sir! the boat has broken in pieces and gone to the bottom!"

For a moment Fulton was utterly overwhelmed. Never in his whole life, he used to say, was he so near despairing as then. Hastening to the river, he found, indeed, that the weight of the machinery had broken the frame work of the vessel, and she lay on the bottom of the river, in plain sight, a mass of timber and iron. Instantly, with his own hands, he began the work of raising her, and kept at it, without food or rest, for twenty-four hours—an exertion which permanently injured his health. His death in the prime of life was, in all probability, remotely caused by the excitement, exposure and toil of that terrible day and night.

In a few weeks the boat, sixty feet long and eight wide, was rebuilt, and the submerged engine replaced in her. The National Institute of France and a great concourse of Parisians witnessed her trial trip in July, 1803. The result was encouraging but not brilliant. The boat moved slowly along the tranquil Seine, amid the acclamations of the multitude, but the quick eye of Fulton at once discerned that the machinery was defective and inadequate, and that, in order to give the invention a fair trial, it was necessary to begin anew, to procure an engine far more powerful and a boat better adapted to the purpose. As Chancellor Livingston was about to return home, it was resolved that the next attempt should be made at New York, and an engine for the purpose was ordered from the manufactory at Birmingham of Watt and Bolton.

In September, 1807, the famous Clermont, 160 tons, was completed. Monday, September the [illegible], was the day appointed for a grand trial trip to Albany, and by noon a vast crowd had assembled on the wharf to witness the performance of what was popularly called "Fulton's Folly." Fulton himself declares that, at noon on that day, not thirty persons in the city had the slightest faith in the success of the steamboat, and that, as the boat was putting off, he heard many "sarcastic remarks." At one o'clock, however, she moved from the dock, vomiting smoke and sparks from her pine wood fires, and casting up clouds of spray from her uncovered paddle wheels. As her speed increased, the jeers of the incredulous were silenced, and soon the departing voyagers caught the sound of cheers. In a few minutes, however, the boat was observed to stop, which gave a momentary triumph to the scoffers. Fulton perceived that the paddles, being too long, took too much hold of the water, and he stopped the boat for the purpose of shortening them. This was soon done, and the boat resumed her voyage with increased speed, and kept on her course all that day, all the succeeding night, and all the next morning, until at one o'clock on Tuesday she stopped at the seat of Chancellor Livingston, 110 miles from New York. There she remained till the next morning, when she continued her voyage to Albany, where she arrived at five in the afternoon. The [illegible] was thus made at the rate of nearly five miles an hour. Returning to New York, he performed the distance in thirty hours—exactly five miles an hour.

The Clermont was immediately put upon the river as a packet boat, and plied between New York and Albany until the close of navigation, being always crowded with passengers. [illegible] during the winter, she resumed her trips in the spring of 1808, and continued to run with great success and with profit to her owners. It was long, however, before the river boatmen were reconciled to tolerate this new and terrible rival. At first, it is said, they [illegible] to be [illegible] run down by her. Afterwards, recovering their courage, they made so many attempts to destroy her that the legislature passed a special act for her protection.

[illegible] devoted the rest of his life to the improvement of the steamboat. He lived to see the value of his labors universally recognized, [illegible] the possessor of a handsome fortune. He died in 1815, aged fifty years, leaving a widow and four children, two of whom are still living in New York. He was able to leave his wife an income of nine thousand dollars a year, as well as five hundred dollars a year to each of his children, till they were twelve years old, and one thousand dollars a year afterward, till they were twenty-one. So, at least, runs his will, written a year before his death. His remains lie in Trinity Churchyard, in the city of New York.

Robert Fulton was in every respect an honor to his country and his profession. Tall, handsome, and well bred, he easily made friends, whose regard he retained by his sincerity, generosity and good humor. His crowning virtue was that remarkable resolution which enabled him to bear patiently the most cruel disappointments, and to hold calmly on his way, till he had conquered a sublime success.—Ledger.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S BIRTHPLACE.—A correspondent of the New York Herald, writing from Raleigh, N. C., May 24, says:

In a rather plain frame building in this city, the present President of the United States was born. The house was shown to me by the owner, a venerable old lady named Stewart. In an ecstasy of delight, she told me how, on returning from her wedding tour, the first news she got was, "Polly had a baby." Full of the feelings and enthusiasm of a young bride, she rushed in and kissed and hugged the baby. "Little I thought," she exclaimed, "that I was caressing the future President of the United States."

"You, then, knew his father and mother."

"Yes, sir, I knew them well; they were in our employ for several years."

"How did they [illegible]?"

"They were plain, hard working, honest folks, that attended to their business and nothing more."

When leaving, the old lady said: "How I would like to see him, dear me, only it's so far; but then he would not know me. Well, any way, I should like to see him; I think he would grant me one little request. I have a grandson in prison in the North; perhaps he'd let him go. I ought to gladden my old heart; would you mention it to him, sir?"

He may see this and gladden the old lady by an act of clemency.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction, even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.

[illegible], March 26, 1864.

Messrs. TILTON & McFARLAND,
Safe Manufacturers, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen: From representations made by Mr. Lillie, I was induced to purchase [illegible] one of his

So Called "Fire Proof Safes."

On the 18th of February last, a fire occurred in our block which destroyed a number of buildings, and our own with the rest. We trusted our books, papers and all in the Safe. After the fire the so-called "safe" was taken from the cellar, and on opening it we found that Everything had been Destroyed.

We send you the safe, with what is left of the papers, and you will see that not one of them is legible, or is large enough to [illegible]. Having the curiosity to know how our neighbors fared in this fire, we noticed McKenzie & Hardy just opening their safe (TILTON & McFARLAND'S make) and its contents were found to be

In Perfect Condition.

This led us to further investigation, and we found to our astonishment that from the large amount of combustible material in Messrs. McK. & H.'s cellar—such as lard, pork, etc.—their safe was subjected to a much greater heat than that of our own, we being in the clothing business and had but little in the cellar. There was another [illegible] safe there subjected to the same suffering, however, no better than ours.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants,
(Signed) GEO. L. CHESBORO & CO.

out of one of our Safes by means of Burglars. Their fire and burglar proof qualities are so well known that they need no further recommendation.

A good assortment of Tilton & McFarland's Fire and Burglar Proof Safes to be had at

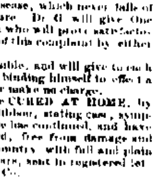
TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,



617 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases of years standing, and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned to this State, after an absence of one year, during which time he has visited all the principal hospitals of Europe, among them those of Dublin, London and Paris. The following celebrated hospitals of London are among those visited by the Doctor: Guy's, High street, Borough; St. Bartholomew's, Smithfield; St. Mary's, Conduit Place, Pad.; Lock, Harrow road; St. Luke's, Old street; University, Gower street, Westminster, Broad Sanctuary, Charing Cross, Agar street, Strand; London, Whitechapel road; Royal Free, Gray's Inn road; King's College, Portugal street.

DOCTOR GIBBON has also visited Doctors Acton of London, Parker of Birmingham, England; and Ricord of Paris, who are considered the best physicians and surgeons in the world, and whose authority is acknowledged to be the highest in the treatment of Sexual Diseases.

DOCTOR GIBBON has obtained from them their new mode of treatment which cannot be surpassed.

DOCTOR GIBBON has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with new facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system. Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies, see that they are cured and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells Fargo & Co.
